20. Prospects of Eco - Tourism in Kolhapur District

Dr. A. A. Kulkarni

Associate Professor and Head, Department of Commerce, Gopal Krishna Gokhale College, Kolhapur (M.S.)

Abstract

Ecotourism is an alternative to mass tourism. It is a form of tourism which focuses on traveling sensibly and keeping environmental sustainability. It will help in environmental conservation and well-being of the local people. We can promote ecotourism by building awareness for the environment. There are number of lakes in Kolhapur district in hilly talukas like Shahuwadi, Radhanagari, Chandgad, Bhudargad etc. which are untapped and far away from development. They have been categorized as eco sensitive zones by Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate change (MoEF)

Keywords: Eco-tourism, Ecotourists, Eco sensitive zones

Introduction

Ecotourism is an alternative to commercial group tourism. It is a form of tourism which focuses on traveling sensibly and keeping environmental sustainability. Ecotourists go on small-scale and low impact trips to keep the environment clean and healthy. Ecotourism is slowly picking among travelers. Responsible tourism should become a lifestyle for everyone. We can promote ecotourism by building awareness for the environment and minimizing the impact of your trip to a destination, take, for instance, the impact on roads. Ecotourism helps in the preservation of the environment, and by extension, biodiversity. This, in turn, drives our economy. If a country invests in ecotourism, its economy can get a much-needed boost. Particularly European countries are much aware of ecotourism. Ecotourism is great for the environment. It has a very low impact on the environment and contributes to our economy. It also cultivates environmental education. The constant threat of global warming and degradation of nature has brought the idea of ecotourism in the glare of publicity. Besides, promotion of fragile & uninterrupted nature and connecting secluded environment with the mainstream are a few concerns that have been duly addressed by ecotourism in India. Today, there are number of sprawling farms, resorts, homestays, and eco-friendly hotels in India that offer a natural retreat in India's popular tourist destinations. Eco Sensitive Zones (ESZs) have been developed to put spotlight on India's wildlife sanctuaries, forest reserves, and biodiversity parks.
